REELING & HEALING MIDWEST SEEKS FLY DONATIONS AT UPCOMING MIDWEST FLY FISHING EXPO IN WARREN, MICHIGAN

BRANCH, MI, FEBRUARY 26, 2007: Reeling & Healing Midwest, a non-profit organization that organizes and runs fly fishing retreats for women cancer survivors, is seeking donations of flies for use during their 2007 retreats (Reeling and Healing Midwest will also share these donated flies with other similar organizations that provide fly fishing retreats, outings and educational experiences).

They encourage interested parties to stop by the Reeling and Healing Midwest booth at the upcoming Midwest Fly Fishing Expo and donate flies for a good cause.

What types of flies are needed? All types, including trout flies (dries, nymphs, streamers.), bass flies, steelhead and salmon flies. Have flies in your collection that you don't foresee using? Stop by and drop them off.

No flies to donate? Consider donating monies towards the purchase of flies and fly boxes. Individuals donating three dozen or more flies will be eligible to win raffle prizes of fishing gear, books, outdoor equipment and apparel. Prizes will be awarded during the expo on Saturday and Sunday.

Reeling & Healing Midwest will host ten to twelve retreats during 2007 and anticipates over 400 cancer survivors will participate, helped along by dozens of dedicated volunteers and fishing guides who generously donate their time and services to make each retreat a meaningful success. Donated flies play a large part in the success of these retreats as well.
